

and too many poor. I intended to give half the money I made to the poor. The remainder I intended to take back to Germany."

"Did Muret help you kill Anna Ammeller?"

"Muret had nothing to do with the sacrifice. He was with me in the money. God and I made the sacrifice. It was a real blood sacrifice and not artificial. I drank the blood and made the sacrifice complete."

Schmidt was asked today if he knew whether the victim of his crime was about to become a mother. The question was put him in several different ways and finally he said:

"A double sacrifice was more satisfactory to God."

Thomas J. Messener, the wife murderer who was Schmidt's cell mate yesterday and last night, asked Warden Fallon for a transfer to another cell to-day. The Warden asked Messener, who was about to dismember his own wife after he had murdered her, as Schmidt dismembered Anna Ammeller, why he wanted to be moved.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Messener, "that fellow ain't right. I was talking to him a while ago and I asked him why he killed his wife."

"I killed her because I loved her," he said, "and I love you, too."

Messener requested to be transferred to another cell and his wish was granted. Schmidt's every move is closely watched by the Tombs authorities.

SAYS SCHMIDT SUGGESTED COUNTERFEITING.

Muret's dental establishment is on the ground floor at No. 301 St. Nicholas avenue, in a flat house. The house is on the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, a block away from St. Joseph's Church, where Schmidt was stationed as a curate.

Schmidt appeared for the first time at Muret's office ten months ago. Muret had a workshop in the basement. It was Schmidt's custom to sit in the workshop, watch Muret in his operations and play the sitzer. Schmidt also sang French and German songs, according to the janitor of the house.

According to Muret it was Schmidt who first suggested going into the business of making counterfeiting money. This was early in the summer. On June 30 they answered an advertisement stating that flats were to let in the house at No. 516 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street. They went to the address together and met Margaret Rutledge, the caretaker. Muret conducted the negotiations and rented a four-room flat on the top floor at $23 a month. He gave the name of George Miller. Schmidt, attired in the clothing of a layman, gave no name. Schmidt objected to the wall paper, which was green, and they went to the renting agency at No. 506 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street to pick out some light paper.

RECOGNIZED IN STORE BY POLICEMAN.

While Muret and Schmidt were looking over the supply of wall paper, Patrolman William F. Reith of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, who was looking for a flat, entered the office. Reith, who attends St. Joseph's Church, recognized Schmidt as one of the priests, and was surprised to find him there in the clothes of a layman. He mentioned the meeting at the station house. When Schmidt was arrested for murder Reith remembered the incident in the renting office last June and communicated with Inspector Faurot. His information was of value in running down the counterfeiting plant.

The police have established that Muret, who is taller than Schmidt, but looks so much like him that he was taken for Schmidt's brother, visited the flat in Bradhurst avenue where Anna Ammeller was killed and dismembered. In Muret's possession was found obstetrical surgical instruments. He also had a supply of the cards of Dr. Molliere of "The Woman's Municipal Hospital, Paris, France." These same cards were found in Schmidt's trunk, and they indicate to the police that one, or both, of the men engaged in the practice of medicine in an illicit way.

GOVERNMENT INTEREST IN COUNTERFEITS.

Muret faces prosecution under the Federal law for counterfeiting. Capt. John Henry, in command of the local branch of the Secret Service, will swear out a warrant for his arrest. Capt. Henry consulted with Chief Flynn of the Secret Service, who was in town to-day, and they recalled that a warning was sent out last summer against counterfeit bills of a certain series. The warning called attention to some defects in the engraving.

It looks to Chief Flynn and his men that the plates and the partly printed bills found in the West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street plant were experiments at getting rid of the defects pointed out by the Government. The Secret Service people are mightily interested in the counterfeiting enterprise of Schmidt and Muret.

FATHER EVERS POINTS OUT SCHMIDT'S DUAL FACE.

Schmidt slept well in his cell last night. The keeper said Schmidt today. He found the murderer calm, but unwilling to talk. Schmidt refused to accept a suggestion that a priest able to speak German be summoned to talk to him.

"This man," explained Father Evers, "is backward in his English speech because he thinks in German and then has to translate before putting his thoughts into English words. That explains why those who question him get an impression that he is shy or mentally deficient when, as a matter of fact, his brain is alert."

"Schmidt has not only a dual character, but a double face. The back side of his face is what I would call the 'wrong' side, the features expressing craft, cunning and unwholesome intentions. The right side of the face, seen alone, is like the face of a child. It would seem that he was intended for a twin, and on that account was born with two personalities."

The impression that Schmidt is feigning insanity is gaining ground in the Tombs, although Deputy-Commissioner of Corrections Wright and Warden Fallon believe the prisoner is stark mad. This belief is not shared by Coroner Feinberg and other authorities.

"Schmidt's counterfeiting operations, his cleverness in concealing his real character from the priests of his church and his ability to get rid of the body of his victim without detection show that he had an orderly mind," declares the Coroner. "His tale of drinking the blood of his victim and offering her as a sacrifice sounds like a planned insanity defense and I have no doubt it will be shown up at the trial."

PERSUADED BY HIS MOTHER TO ENTER THE CHURCH.

A cablegram received to-day from Munich throws some light on Schmidt's early life. It appears that he did not have any desire to become a priest but was persuaded to enter holy orders by the entreaties of his mother. Having no vocation for a religious life he was an indifferent priest and soon after his ordination was detected in dishonest practices and suspended from the ministry.

Following his suspension he went to Munich from Munich, and in Munich he fell in love with a young woman. He wanted to marry her, but was unable to do so and retain his faith because he had been ordained a priest. Schmidt had planned to quit the Catholic church and enter a Protestant order which allowed marriage. When his mother and other relatives heard of his intention they died, and he was left with no one to turn to for support.

Information showing that Schmidt's fondness for women kept him skirting the borders of trouble most of the time has been received from Inspector Faurot, but because of Schmidt's suspicious habits and today afternoon they took the agent for the house and the janitor to the Alpha, where Muret has an office. ADMITS WORKING AT PHOTOGRAPHY WITH SCHMIDT.

Detective McKenna told the girl in charge of the dentist's office that he wanted to have some work done on his teeth. The dentist was put. With the woman he went to the lobby and remained until Muret appeared at 10 o'clock last night. Both women shook hands with him, and the janitor said:

"I know this man as George Miller," which was the cue afforded on if she recognized him. McKenna and Detective Casassa, O'Connell and O'Neill, who were concealed nearby, arrested him. Then they went upstairs and got the girl in his office as a witness.

They say Muret admitted having rented the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street flat. He said he was accustomed to work there every day with Schmidt, the priest, from 8 until 10 A. M. and after 10 at night. But he said his work was experimental photography, and he knew nothing about any counterfeiting. He told them he was born in Chicago in 1894 and they say admitted he was a "fake dentist." He went to Europe when twelve or fourteen years old and later studied dentistry in Berlin, but failed in his examination and was refused a diploma. He came back to this country in 1908 and worked as assistant to well-known New York dentist until a year ago, when he opened the office in the St. Nicholas avenue house, which is at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

The police found on the wall a parchment certifying that Muret is a member of the Dental Protective Association of the United States, which they think may be a forgery. They also found a commission showing that Muret is a notary public, appointed last May by Gov. Sulzer. Their search revealed the suspicious surgical instruments, a quantity of bank note paper similar to that found in the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street flat, a $200 revolver, and papers showing that he had been taking a correspondence course in law.

SAYS PRIEST WAS UNUSUALLY HAPPY AFTER MURDER.

In Muret's pocket was a letter from a Connecticut printing press firm quoting prices on ink rollers. It was addressed to "George Miller," and, the police say, disproves Muret's assertion that he knew nothing about anything in the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street flat, except the photograph outfit.

The surgical instruments embrace a wide variety, and include saws and forceps such as are used to make complete amputations.

Muret told them that when he saw Schmidt on Sept. 4 the priest seemed to be highly elated over something, and that he had treated a cut on Schmidt's hand that threatened to become infected. Muret, according to the police, admits knowing the Ammeller girl.

The deeper the police dig into Schmidt's past and the more they investigate some of the statements he has made to them, the greater becomes the police conviction that Schmidt could tell many a startling story of crime if he desired. The discovery of the counterfeiting plant proved that he had deceived them.

FOUR SUICIDES IN FAMILY OF PRIEST IN PAST FIVE YEARS.

ASCHAFFENBURG, Germany, Sept. 14.—The parents of the Rev. Johannes Schmidt, the confessed murderer of Anna Ammeller, say the young priest is "hereditarily abnormal." Several members of the family are confined in asylums for the demented, and there have been four suicides in the family within the past five years.

The letters sent home by the young priest are said by his relatives to have been written in a confused and hazy style. Local physicians consider that the murderer's perverted instincts were accentuated by forced study.

It is known that he resorted to forced study even during his boyhood, and by their means was enabled to enter the classical high school at Mainz, where he was educated. He was arrested and charged with the offense, but released by the Court as weak-minded and irresponsible.

STRANGER THAN "TARZAN"

You remember "Tarzan of the Apes?" Strange, most fascinating story ever printed in a newspaper.

Well, the same author (Edgar Rice Burroughs) has written a new story even stranger and more fascinating. It is "THE CAVE GIRL."

"THE CAVE GIRL" has all the elements of wild jungle life that made "Tarzan" so entrancing. And it is, if anything, a better story.

"THE CAVE GIRL" will begin serial publication in The Evening World, Monday, Sept. 22.

JUDGE SAYS PHONE MAKES GIRLS BAD

Also It Is Causing People to Be Extravagant and Breaking Down Government.

ASHBURN, N. C., Sept. 16.—In his charge to the Grand Jury to-day Judge Frank Carter said modern conditions are tending toward the downfall of the Government, and that the telephone is one of the most provocative causes of immorality and has increased the cost of living at least thirty per cent. He declared that it is helping to break down the morality of young womanhood, as "boys and girls say things to each other over 'phone' that they would not say if they had to speak face to face."

The use of the telephone, Judge Carter said, caused people thoughtlessly to order things from merchants that they would not otherwise purchase, and thus increase their bills. Private letters and news, "false expression in the purchase of automobiles by people who couldn't buy shoes were their honest debts paid, and private extravagance has led to public extravagance which threatens to bankrupt the country." He said that much of the crime to-day can be traced directly to extravagant living.

NEGRO IS HUNTED BY ARMED POSSE IN CONNECTICUT

Run Down in Corn Field in Night Chase for Attack on Woman in New Britain.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Sept. 16.—A body of armed men during last night pursued and captured Charles Adams, a negro hostler, who had been accused by Mrs. W. C. Voght, living in the outskirts of the city, with an attack upon her. Over hills and through fields Adams was chased until an automobile party finally drove him into a corn field. Then the posse with rifles and shotguns closed in and took the negro prisoner.

The chase began when Mrs. Voght ran to her neighbors late yesterday and told how the negro appeared at her home and cowered her with a revolver.

In court to-day Adams was held in $10,000 bail for trial.

MRS. PANKHURST WITH DAUGHTERS IN PARIS

Awaiting Report on Probable Action on Her Landing Here—May Send Cristabel Instead.

PARIS, Sept. 16.—If the Ellis Island authorities determine to detain Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst as an undesirable or as a fugitive, Miss Cristabel Pankhurst, daughter of the militant leader, may be substituted for her mother on the American tour next month. Mrs. Pankhurst, with Miss Sylvia Pankhurst and Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, was found to-day in a Paris hotel.

"I am saying no attention to the absurd stories that I might be detained on Ellis Island and deported," Mrs. Pankhurst said, when asked about her proposed visit to the United States, "but I would rather make no statement for a few days."

A member of her entourage, though, admitted that Mrs. Pankhurst is paying close attention to developments in America, and that if Miss Joan Wickham, now on her way to New York City, Mrs. Pankhurst's advance agent, thinks best, Miss Cristabel Pankhurst will make the trip in her mother's stead. Mrs. Pankhurst is unwilling to make known her plans until she knows the American attitude toward her, which she expects to learn from the reports of Miss Wickham.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—To make sure they will be prepared, in case Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst's entry into the United States is delayed by immigration officials, the National Woman's Suffrage Association to-day retained two lawyers who will look up precedents and prepare Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal.

NAVY GUNNERS MAKE NEW WORLD'S RECORD

Battleship Arkansas Leads All Craft in First Division Practice.

The First Division, Atlantic Fleet, arrived at the Brooklyn Navy Yard this afternoon. The Arkansas, flagship of the First Division, although a new ship, registered a big hit in the recent elementary target practices on the Southern drill ground. The combined score for gunnery and torpedoes puts this ship far ahead in the race for the battle efficiency pennant.

One turret of twelve-inch guns fired six shots, all of which were hits, in a time, it was stated, which sets a new world's record.

THAW IN JUBILEE OVER LATEST MOVE.

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 16.—Harry K. Thaw, with his custodian and train of contending lawyers, left at 6:18 o'clock this morning for Littleton, N. H.

Thaw was represented in court by Moses H. Grossman and L. J. Voorhis of New York City. Jerome himself was to appear for the State of New York. He was prepared bitterly to resist the move of the Thaw lawyers to obtain a continuance of the writ, on the ground of having at least thirty per cent. He declared that it is helping to break down the morality of young womanhood, as "boys and girls say things to each other over 'phone' that they would not say if they had to speak face to face."

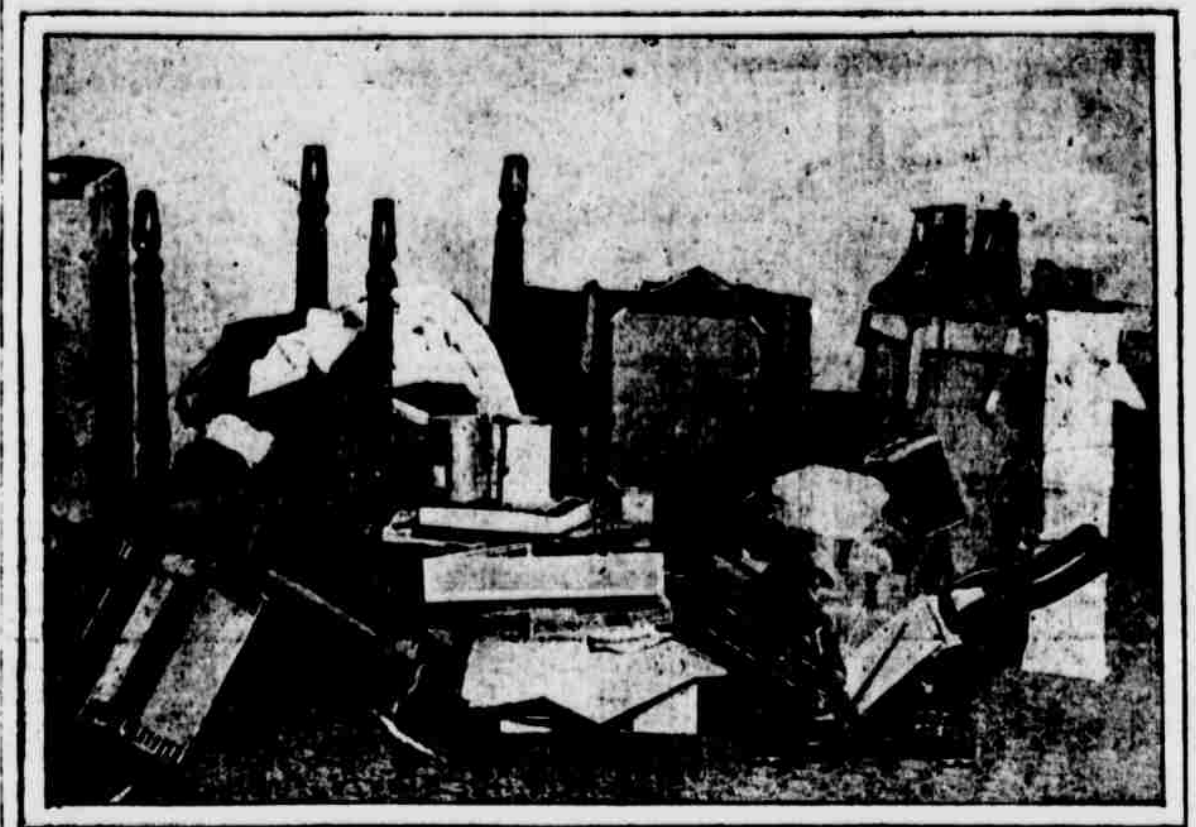

The use of the telephone, Judge Carter said, caused people thoughtlessly to order things from merchants that they would not otherwise purchase, and thus increase their bills. Private letters and news, "false expression in the purchase of automobiles by people who couldn't buy shoes were their honest debts paid, and private extravagance has led to public extravagance which threatens to bankrupt the country." COUNTERFEITING OUTLET

MEXICANS CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE DAY

No Anti-American Feeling Shown in Capital, Where President Huerta Is Leading Figure.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16.—What was unquestionably the biggest parade in Mexico City in years was held to-day in celebration of the nation's Independence Day. A cold, drizzling rain caused the flags and bunting, with which the city was adorned, to droop and made marching over the sodden pavements a dreary process, but it did not suffice to quench the holiday spirit.

Gen. Victoriano Huerta, the Provisional President of Mexico, in full uniform, surrounded by his staff and accompanied by many Government officials and foreign diplomats, made a short address applauding the patriotic ardor of the younger element of the population and calling them the "hope of the nation" and "worthy sons of loyal fathers." At the conclusion of the ceremonies the Presidential party drove through the street, lined for the most part several deep with householders showing confetti and flowers from windows and balconies, to the National Palace where Gen. Huerta reviewed the parade.

There was a complete lack of any semblance of anti-American feeling among the crowds. The rumors of probable uprisings and demonstrations which never fail to recur yearly at this holiday, appeared to be without foundation.

CHICAGO WOMEN SPEND $75,000 YEAR ON DRESS

But Only a Few Go That Limit, the Majority Ranging From $50,000 Down to $200.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—There are a few women in Chicago who spend $75,000 a year in personal adornment, according to an estimate submitted at the semi-annual convention of the Chicago Dressmakers' Club to-day. The dressmakers figured that the average factory girl spends $2.84 a week for clothing. These figures were arrived at by averaging the estimates made by the various delegates.

The table reads: "A few, $75,000; one hundred social leaders, $50,000; ten thousand others, $5,000; well-dressed club women, $1,500; the suffragettes, $500; the church worker, $200; the social worker, $100; the stenographer, $75; the shop girl, $50; the factory girl, $20."

Madame C. H. Phair, President of the club, declared that many working girls lose money because they do not know how to make their own clothing.

WANTS BRYAN ON $250 BILL.

Johnson Would Also Picture Other Notables on Nation's Money.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—A suggestion that the likeness of Gen. James B. Weaver, the original Greenback man, adorn all five-dollar notes in future was contained in an amendment to the Administration Currency bill to-day offered by Representative Johnson of Washington. He backed the demand by reading a letter from an earnest constituent.

Johnson went further by facetiously demanding that the face of former Senator Pfeffer, Populist, of Kansas adorn the one-dollar bill, and that the faces of the late President McKinley and the late President Cleveland adorn the two-dollar and five-dollar bills, respectively.

The likeness of Secretary of State Bryan, addressing a Chautauqua, should decorate a special new $250 denomination.

JAIL FOR COCAINE MAN.

Boss Vendor of "Coke" Sentenced to Year in Penitentiary.

Frank Cunningham, said by the police to be the best known cocaine dealer in the city, was sent to the penitentiary for one year to-day by the Justices in Special Sessions. In addition to this he must pay a fine of $500 or stand sentenced to a day in prison for each dollar of the fine. This was the maximum penalty that can be imposed by the Court.

With the arrest and conviction of Cunningham, the police believe that they have put a stop to the enormous distribution of cocaine that has flooded the market.

LAWYERS BLAMED FOR CROWDED PRISON

Two Days Consumed Trying Man Who Wanted to Plead Guilty.

Nathaniel Clarke, a negro, accused of bigamy, on trial before Judge Swann and a jury in General Sessions for two days, was convicted this afternoon. The jury deliberated on their verdict but five minutes.

"I understand you wanted to plead guilty before the trial began. Is that so?" Judge Swann asked Clarke.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"This shows you," Judge Swann told the jurors, "who is really responsible for the law's delay. Your time and the Court's time at an expense of $5 a day is taken up to try a man who, knowing he is guilty, wants to plead guilty and is prevented."

"The city prison will be crowded as long as this practice is kept up," Clarke was reminded to the Tombs to await sentence.

FIRM BLAMED FOR EMPLOYEE'S MURDER

Retained Drunkard, So Court Rules That It Must Support Slain Man's Widow.

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—A firm was held responsible for the crime of a drunken employee, who killed a fellow workman, and must support the widow of the victim, according to a decision in the Massachusetts Supreme Court to-day, under the Workmen's Compensation act. The children of the dead man, however, are not entitled to compensation.

This point of law was settled in a suit for damages for the death of Stuart McNeil. He was killed by Timothy McCarthy. Both were employed by Patterson, Wyde & Co., Importers. McCarthy assaulted McNeil in a frenzy of intoxication. The court says the widow alone was entitled to compensation. It reverses, in this case, the decision of the Superior Court in favor of the widow and daughter, and enters a new decree in favor of the widow only.

The Industrial Accident Board found that McCarthy was in the habit of getting drunk, and when in that condition was quarrelsome and dangerous. This was known to St. Matthews. He permitted him to work. McNeil was killed while employed. He was a checker at the Hooseum Turnout Docks. The Court holds the act of McCarthy was committed while the man was intoxicated.
